

RESEARCH BUREAU ANALYZES CHARTER

Members of New Council to Be Chosen by State Senatorial Districts

CREATES BUYING AGENT

In discussing the structural changes resulting from the new charter legislation, the Municipal Research Bureau in its latest bulletin outlines the results under six subdivisions.

They include a purchasing agent, a city architect, a department of public welfare, an appointive city solicitor, a unified accounting system and a small single-chambered Council.

The changes are given as follows: The original charter bill would have substituted for the old department of supplies a purchasing agent to be appointed by the Mayor subject to confirmation by the City Council. A supplementary bill making the city purchasing agent an office county purchasing agent died in committee.

The provisions of the original bill relating to the new office of city architect are retained in the charter act with the modification that the city architect is not to be appointed under civil service rules, but, like the purchasing agent, appointed by the Mayor subject to confirmation by the City Council.

Public Welfare Department
The original bill proposed to center the activities of the bureau of correction, the bureau of charities and the board of recreation in a new department of public welfare. This proposal with a slight modification is carried out by the charter act. During the passage of the bill it was so amended that no hospitals will come under the department of public welfare, but all city hospitals will be brought under the department of public health.

Following the provisions of the original bill the charter act raises the Bureau of Health to the rank of a department to be called the Department of Public Health.

The new act provides that the city solicitor shall be appointed by the Mayor, subject to confirmation by the City Council, instead of being elected as heretofore. This was a proposal of the charter committee which went through without change.

The original bill proposed that the city treasurer should take over the functions of the receiver of taxes and that the latter office be abolished. This change was bitterly opposed by the present receiver of taxes and at his instance the attorney general had it stricken from the bill. The result is that the act as passed does not change the law as to these offices.

City Bookkeeping System

The charter act provides for a completely unified accounting system for the city, to be under the jurisdiction of the city controller. All employees of the city engaged in keeping the accounts are to be under the controller's supervision. This provision was one of the original proposals of the charter committee and was passed without change. Despite a great deal of heated discussion, the original proposal of the charter committee substituting a small single-chambered council for the present large two-chambered body was finally adopted without change. Members of the new council will be chosen by state senatorial districts instead of by wards as in the past. Each district will be entitled to one councilman for every 20,000 assessed voters or major fraction thereof. On the basis of 1918 figures this will give us a council of twenty-one members, as compared with our present legislative body of 145 members.

NUGENT ATTACKS PROHIBITION LAWS

Opens Fight for Democratic Nomination for Governor of New Jersey

"PERSONAL LIBERTY" PLEA

Lakewood, N. J., July 10.—James R. Nugent, candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, today fired the first gun of his campaign, which he is waging on a platform of personal liberty and opposition to prohibition and woman suffrage. In his speech he said if nominated and elected, he would use his utmost endeavors to see that prohibition is kept off the statute books of the state, and asserted confidence that the constitutional amendment, if properly presented to the Supreme Court of the United States, will be declared unconstitutional. After reading a long list of his objections to prohibition Mr. Nugent said:

"Regulated liberty, the chief spring of all human improvement, has been developed in this country by a process of slow evolution, and not by such revolutionary prohibition measures.

"I do not countenance conferring powers and privileges upon narrow majorities with which to burden the conscience and habits of minorities.

"Prohibition means hypocrisy, evasion of all law, and bribery.

"The trouble with all prohibition legislation is the fact that it increases drunkenness.

"The trouble with the Anti-Saloon League and the prohibition reformers is they believe you can change the nature and bind the will of thousands of men by fiat of law. You cannot legislate temperance into a man any more than you can legislate religion into a man. You must awaken the public conscience, the individual conscience, and this cannot be done by passing prohibitory laws.

"The best form of government and one I sincerely believe in and seriously advocate conforms to the old Democratic theory: viz., giving a maximum of liberty with a minimum of law.

"Prohibition has failed wherever it has been tried. But liberty and decent living have never failed."

Mr. Nugent also spoke today at Point Pleasant and Toms River. He will go from Lakewood to Atlantic City.

Tomorrow Mr. Nugent will attend a dinner of the board of trade at Beach Haven and speak on the subject of New Jersey's need of an inland waterway.

ALIKENESS

PEAKING of twins, somebody remarked that James and John were very much alike, particularly James. But there is not even that difference between Tecla Pearls and Orientals. They are alike in nothing so much as in their likeness.

How much Turkish?

No cigarette names mentioned

There are only three kinds of cigarettes: (1) those containing Turkish tobaccos alone, (2) those containing Domestic tobaccos alone, and (3) those containing various blends of both Turkish and Domestic. We manufacture all three kinds.

Hence we have nothing to lose and everything to gain by advising you fairly and openly as to which one of these three kinds of cigarettes will probably suit you best.

"How much Turkish?" is the big question in choosing a cigarette and the more smokers we can help by this frank advice, the more steady, contented purchasers we can count on, year after year, for our various cigarettes.

Tear out this advertisement—show it to some friend.

Are you smoking too much—or too little—Turkish?

UNTIL you find the right answer to that question, you won't get one-half of the sheer enjoyment and comfort you should get from each day's smoking.

Maybe you have the answer already.

Maybe your present cigarette is exactly the right one for you. If so, hang on to it—you're lucky and this story is not meant for you.

But, unless you are positive—unless you KNOW—that your present cigarette suits you better than any other cigarette possibly can, it will pay you well to understand this question of "How much Turkish?"

Straight Turkish vs. Domestic Tobaccos

Turkish and Domestic tobaccos are very different from each other. Turkish has a delicate, smooth flavor and a very rich, heavy aroma—Domestic has more real tobacco character, and the better grades possess what tobacco men like to call "life" or "sparkle."

Some men (comparatively few, however) can smoke straight Turkish cigarettes all day long.

Others—many of them; our records show—go to the other extreme, and prefer straight Domestic. They can't stand any Turkish at all. They find it over-rich or heavy—too much aroma.

And in between these two extremes is the big majority—the normal or average smokers.

These average smokers like the Turkish flavor—yes. But they find that Turkish tobacco is something like plum pudding or candy—awfully good, but too much is, decidedly, too much.

Turkish and Domestic —Blended

So the average smoker finds that the just-right cigarette is a happy medium—that he can smoke more often and actually get more solid pleasure out of his smoking, all day long, by choosing a cigarette which is of part Turkish and part Domestic tobaccos, combined in a good blend.

Such cigarettes are called "Turkish blend" cigarettes.

How to recognize a good "Turkish blend"

There are only two things that count in a "Turkish blend" cigarette. One is the quality of the tobaccos themselves (both Turkish and Domestic), and the other is the proper proportioning of each to each in the blending.

But while there are many "Turkish blends" on the market, it is easy for anyone to pick the good ones. Here is a simple test. If a cigarette satisfies your own requirements on these three points, it is pretty sure to be both a good blend and the right smoke for you:

First—It must give you that real Turkish flavor—but not so much of it as to be too rich or heavy.

Second—Along with this Turkish flavor, watch also for that "life" and delightful "sparkle" or that ripe, cool mellowness, peculiar to certain Domestic tobaccos.

Third—The cigarette should let your smoke appetite stay sharp and crisp so that you will relish every smoke clear up to bed-time; and whether or not you happen to smoke more heavily than usual, it should leave you feeling keen and fine.

"How much Turkish?"

So begin with this question—"How much Turkish?" You'll have to answer it yourself, for each man's taste is his own. But keep thinking about it; for when you've answered it correctly, you'll have found "your" cigarette. And we know we don't need to emphasize how much that will mean to you.
